The examinations will be concluded tomorrow. The order of subjects for the day are: Civil government, U. S. History, agriculture, algebra, advanced science, physiology, writing, pedagogy, literature and advanced history.

Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent, is in charge of the examinations.

The rural schools of Nodaway County will open Sept. 7 this year, according to the recommendation contained in a letter being sent out today to all board members by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent.

In this letter Mr. Somerville asks that all repair work painting and papering of the buildings be done now in order that all schools will be ready for the opening date. He also suggests that the desks be cleaned and varnished, sanitary pit toilets, and modern heating and ventilating plant be installed, wells cleaned and pure wholesome water provided in those schools which have not already done so. He asks that each school place the name and number of its district on the outside of the building where it can be plainly seen. Nodaway County has a goodly number of approved rural schools and Mr. Somerville expects to have more to meet the state requirements this year.

Council in Special Session Last Night

Adopted New Ordinance About Accepting Paving On South Main With Tax Bills.

The city council last evening at a special session repealed an old ordinance about accepting the paving on South Main street from Halasey to Lincoln on account of an error in the measurements in the tax bills which was contained in the ordinance, and adopted a new ordinance correcting the error.

The council will meet again Saturday evening to take action for final adoption of paving resolutions on Fifth street from Mulberry to the Wabash railroad, and on Walnut street from 7th to the Wabash right-of-way. As it appears there will be no protest against paving these streets, the council will order the work done at their session tomorrow.

An appeal will be taken to circuit court, it is said.

IN REVOLT AGAINST ENLOE

OTHER BOARD MEMBERS TURN ON "COLONEL HOUSE."

SERIOUS CHARGES MADE

It Is Indicated Gov. Baker Will Not Force Close Friend to Hand in Resignation.

Jefferson City, Aug. 7.—Wild rumors concerning the ultimate status of Dr. Cortez F. Enloe of the state penal and medical boards continued to swell in variety and quantity here this afternoon when another member of the board, T. H. Wilcoxen of Bowling Green joined the ranks of those admittedly seeking Enloe's ouster. Wilcoxen linked his force with Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the state medical association and Dr. James Stewart of the health board in efforts to secure Enloe's removal, charging that he misused his powers of office to the extent of illegally profiting from the issuance of state licenses.

"I shall also quit the board together with Drs. North and Stewart if Enloe is not removed," said Wilcoxen.

Jefferson City, Aug. 7.—The "revolt" of the state board of health against their co-member, Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, the "Colonel House of the Baker administration," caused a sensation here yesterday among the Republican leaders.

While Governor Baker vigorously denied he had asked, or intended to ask, for the resignation for his closest political adviser and ex-roommate, it was established beyond a doubt this action had been planned.

In the face of this denial, Dr. James Stewart, secretary of the board of health, declared he and Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the board, had been asked to obtain Dr. Enloe's resignation. It is understood the president and secretary of the board threatened to resign unless Dr. Enloe stepped out.

Follows Penal Board "Revolt."

The action of the two officials of the state board followed only a few weeks a "revolt" among the governor's penal board, of which Dr. Enloe is the director. Because of protests made by John Burnett, superintendent of industries at the penitentiary, and Senator Larry Brunk, purchasing agent, the authority of Dr. Enloe was curtailed greatly. The purchasing of penitentiary supplies virtually was taken from Dr. Enloe, formerly the dominant member of the prison board.

In view of the advance publicity on the break among the state health board members, some doubt was expressed here last night that Mr. Baker would go through with his original program. The governor indicated Dr. Enloe would remain in his present position, and the "shake-down" charges in connection with the graduates of the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery would be dismissed with a statement Saturday by the governor explaining away the charges.

Expected to "Pass the Buck"

Apparently the governor will disavow official responsibility by loading it on the preceding Hyde administration, when Dr. Enloe was secretary of the state board. In that event, the "Damon and Pythias" relationship between Governor Baker and Dr. Enloe, personal as well as political would be permitted by the state administration at least to continue an untroubled course.

The vigorous stand purported to have been taken by Dr. North in last

CHINESE NOT INFERIOR RACE

OLDEST MALE IS "BOSS"

He Rules the House in China—Chinese Slow to Adopt New Western Methods and Customs

The Chinese people consider themselves as good in all respects as other peoples and the average Chinese resents the insinuation that his race is an inferior one, says Girault Thach, who is visiting at the home of his aunt, Mrs. H. A. Foster, and Mr. Foster, while on a vacation in the United States after four and one-half years spent in China and Japan. Mr. Thach is connected with a banking corporation in China and goes to Bombay, India, in October in the employ of the same corporation.

Mr. Thach was located in Shanghai while in China and he says that city is much like any American city of the same size. Streets are paved, many of the houses are modern, and many clubs have sprung up. The one thing lacking more than anything else is good theaters.

Servants are plentiful and extremely cheap in China, Mr. Thach reported. He had two Chinese boys in his employ whom he paid five dollars each per month and they were very efficient servants at that.

The upper class in China is usually good-natured, genial, and a good mixer with the foreign element in Shanghai. In addition he is a keen business man, very much comparable to the Scotchman in that respect. Incidentally Mr. Thach says that the monetary system in China is complicated. There are many different standards in current use in different parts of the country and a constant fluctuation is taking place that makes business an interesting undertaking.

The family is still a very strong unit in social life in China, according to Mr. Thach, there being no signs of weakening of the family life there as there are said to be in America today. The oldest male in the family is the master and the other members obey him. For the most part the Chinese marry very young and their marriages are usually arranged by the heads of the families. Only in a few cases where the young Chinese have attended Christian schools do they have any notion of selecting their own mates.

Mr. Thach says that there is no harder or more conscientious worker than the Chinese farmer. Since the standards of living are so low he must use manual labor rather than farm machinery. The farms are very small because of the dense population and farm cultivation is done very intensively in a primitive sort of way. The working class of Chinese which Mr. Thach encountered in Shanghai were also conscientious in performance of duties. For the most part the Occidental conveniences, such as machinery, are being imported from other countries rather than manufactured in China.

Highways of travel are few and far between and the few that are in use are very wretchedly kept, according to Mr. Thach. He thinks this is one of the reasons for so many dialects being spoken as the people cannot travel widely as they should.

An interesting comment on the Chinese nature was made by Mr. Thach concerning the personal appearance of the Chinese. The first part of the foreign wearing apparel that a Chinese adopts is the hat. Next he takes up the wearing of foreign made shoes. This makes his appearance rather ludicrous.

Shanghai is the largest city in China in point of business activities both foreign and domestic, Mr. Thach says. There are about 20,000 foreigners in the city.

As far as a casual observer could tell today, the only Oriental characteristic that Mr. Thach has acquired in his stay in China is the habit of sitting with one leg, or both, curled up under him. Otherwise he is the typical wide-awake, chatty, young American business man of the twentieth century.

U.S. WATCHES COAL CRISIS

COOLIDGE WILL TOLERATE NO PRICE ADVANCE.

HOOVER IS CALLED IN

He and Attorney-General Sargent To Confer With Coolidge at Swampscott—Hammond Proposal.

Swampscott, Aug. 7. — President Coolidge today began forming his plans to meet what promises to be the first serious industrial crisis of his administration, the threatened coal strike. Attorney-general John G. Sargent, arrived here today from Washington for a conference and Secretary Herbert Hoover, reported as being the logical man to direct the government's efforts to bring the operators and miners together, will be at White Court tomorrow. What part the Department of Justice will play in the approaching crisis could not be forecast.

Secretary Hoover will probably call upon the operators and miners to resume negotiations and in event they fail to come together on their own accord he will be instrumental in bringing all possible pressure on them by an appeal to public opinion, it is thought.

Another proposal is being considered, the one by John Hammond, former chairman of the United States coal commission, who is urging co-operative organization to be created to purchase and to store coal against any possible shortage.

President Coolidge is watching the situation closely and will tolerate no increase in prices imposed on the public at the present time. Hammond has reported to him that there is a sufficient surplus of hard coal now to carry the country well into the winter in event of a strike. The existence of this surplus does not warrant an increase at any future time. The Department of Justice may come into the situation again. Price boosting, not based on natural economic necessity, will not be tolerated, it was said.

EX. SPGS. MOB HANGS NEGRO

ASSAILANT OF WHITE GIRL GIVEN SWIFT PUNISHMENT.

GUARDS OVERPOWERED

More Than 1200 In Mob Which Storms Jail and Lynches Negro To Tree.

Excelsior Springs, Aug. 7. — Miller Mitchell, alleged negro assailant of Miss Maude Holt, was taken from the city jail here shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon and lynched by a mob which had been brewing all morning and finally rushed the jail when word was spread that policemen from Kansas City were coming. Prosecuting Attorney Raymond Cummings and his six aids were overpowered.

The lynching took place shortly after the mob had refused to listen to the plea of allowing the negro to be taken to Liberty the county seat for arraignment with the promise of swift justice being done.

The crowd rushed the jail, overpowered the guards and took their victim. The negro was dragged screaming to a tree where he was hanged. His body was riddled with bullets.

Excelsior Springs, Aug. 7—A mob, estimated at more than 1200 persons, milled about the county jail here at 12:30 this afternoon in an avowed attempt to lynch Miller Mitchell, a negro laborer, accused of an attack on Miss Maude Holt, 18 early today. Ray Cummings, county prosecuting attorney, is in charge of the special deputies guarding the jail. Calls for extra police have been sent to Liberty and a squad is reported on its way to Excelsior Springs. The authorities hope to get the negro to Kansas City. Mitchell is due to be arraigned at the city hall at 2 p. m.

The attack occurred early this morning when Miss Holt and her escort, Millard Utt, 20, were returning in a motor car from a picnic at Lawson, Mo. Near the Holt farm, a negro sprang into the road, according to Utt, and forced him to stop the car under cover of a revolver. The boy said that the black kept him covered and defenseless while he dragged the girl behind the car and assaulted her. Utt ran and telephoned Miss Holt's father and a posse of forty-five farmers took up the negro's trail and Mitchell was arrested in Excelsior Springs.

Miss Holt, who is well known in social circles here, is in a serious condition. Plans have been made to take her to court in an ambulance this afternoon to identify Mitchell.

The crowd began to gather shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. At that time there was an angry murmur running through the crowd but no attempt was made to attack the jail. As the early crowd increased to move about 500 cries of "get the nigger" were heard and the crowd began to mill around the jail.

Cummings, who had gone to the jail early, took charge of the situation and tried to talk to the crowd but they paid little attention and shortly afternoon made two rushes on the jail doors. No efforts were made to use a battering ram nor any attack proceeded in the face of riot guns in the hands of Cummings and his deputies.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 7—In response to a call for help to the chief of police, William Shreve sent thirty-two patrolmen, armed with riot guns to Excelsior Springs at 1:30 this afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock fourteen more Kansas City policemen left for Excelsior Springs.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

AN AGE OF HELP WANTED

When the pioneers came into this land they asked no government aid. They knew that they must fell the forests and build homes before they could have farms and homes. It required initiative, industry and vision to foresee fields of growing grain and comfortable homes where the primeval forest held sway. But strong men with the love of land born in them did not hesitate to tackle the job. Each did for himself so far as he was able and asked no odds. Only when the task was too great for one alone was co-operation sought and help then was asked only that it might be given in turn. When difficulties beset them they solved the problems themselves. They were self-reliant because they knew that on themselves depended success. Villages grew and became cities in response to conditions that demanded them. Whatever progress was made was due to the efforts of individuals working alone or in co-operation with others. Our forefathers had no delusions about work. They knew that nothing is accomplished without effort.

We appear to have gone far from the ideas of the pioneers. Too many people believe that there are shorter cuts to accomplishment than hard work coupled with good judgment. This, that and the other interest wants the government to do something. It is true that government can give encouragement to industry but the people themselves must act to gain the advantage of whatever inducements are offered. There is an element that believes that plenty of money would relieve the situation. Russia has more money than any land on earth, yet the people are starving. Too many people appear to have lost initiative and want help.

We need to return to fundamentals. We may talk and speculate but unless we get to work farms will not produce, houses will not arise on vacant lots and the wheels of the mills will not turn. Instead of looking to the lawmakers, Americans need look to themselevs for accomplishments. We need a return of the initiative of our forefathers, who did not know much about appealing to the government when they had troubles but did know a lot about how to work.

A PLEASING SHOWING

Figures gathered by the federal reserve board show that savings deposits in 902 banks of the country totaled $7,977,617,000 on July 1 as compared with $7,450,000,000 on the corresponding date of a year ago. As is indicated these represent savings accounts alone, the greater or less sums deposited as insurance against a time when such funds may be needed. They also represent the margin of the smaller incomes over expenditures and the gain of over $300,000,000 in one year is an accurate index of the prosperity of the country. The showing is evidence of the prevalence of thrift throughout the nation.

One who earns more than one spends is pursuing the road to some degree of affluence. The money thus deposited in bank not only brings to the possessor a return in interest but it, added to many other small sums, serves to finance the great business enterprises of the nation which in turn give employment to many and enable these also to have their savings account. Thus the savings bank depositor not only benefits himself by having the security of money in time of need; he also has a share in furthering the commerce of the country. Modern business could not be carried on were there not storehouses of capital to finance the transactions.

I will leave Friday of this week to attend a service training school held at the factory, Dayton, Ohio. I am spending this time at the factory to better acquaint myself with Delco-Light and its adaptability to the farmer's uses. A great movement is under way to supply dependable electricity to the great American farm.

Delco-Light will spend $2,000,000 for new machinery, which will treble the capacity of its present plant.

Delco-Light business the first seven months of 1925 has exceeded the total of all the 12 months in 1924.

These items of progressive prosperity were made public July 30, by E. G. Biechler, president and general manager of the Delco-Light Co.

A NATION ON WHEELS.

An American writer has said that increased mobility results in heightened civilization but a contemporary in Spain expounds the theory that the automobile will be the cause of the decadence of modern civilization. Both statements were actuated by the increasing number of automobiles in the United States and Europe.

Unlike either the American or the Spanish philosophers the American public takes the automobile and its phenomenal advance as very much a matter of course and therefore is insensible to anything but the practical and pleasurable values of it. Americans neither recognize any relationship between the automobile and civilization or ponder over much on what the automobile will lead the world to.

There is one exception, perhaps, and that is the public's appreciation of the economic value of the automobile industry to the United States. Every man and woman recognizes the great amount of labor, capital and natural resources engaged in the manufacture, sale and operation of the automobile. All know that if the automobile should become extinct today millions of men and women would be thrown out of employment, billions of dollars in capital would be idle and near chaos would reign in this country, where the automobile is more universal by far than in any other country.

Think how many people and what great quantities of goods depend upon the automobile for transportation. There are many people who could not continue in their present occupations without an automobile, although those occupations are not associated with the automotive industry. The world could not supply the demand for horses that would develop over night if the automobile should go out of existence. Although hundreds of motor trucks are now used for the transportation of goods formerly carried by the railroads, the railroads can not now handle the shipping they are compelled to provide for.

The automobile in America is a vital need of the country. Conditions may be different in Spain, but in the United States there is little cause for fears that the automobile will be the ruin of the nation.

SENATOR MORRIS SHEPPARD

A lifelong search for the key to a perfect economic existence on old Mother Earth is the pet hobby of Senator Morris Sheppard (D., of Texas), leader of the prohibitionists in Congress.

Sheppard dreams of a perfect civilization in which each human being will share in the profits of his labor, hold a financial interest in his chosen industry, own his home and face life with real economic freedom. To evolve such a plan Sheppard has spent years in economic study and is reading books on economics. His libraries at home and in his capitol office are packed with economic volumes.

"I hope to work out an economic system," the Senator explains, "that will give each individual the chance to become an owner, in whole or in part, of the business in which he labors. I think that is the keynote to a perfect civilization. Home ownership will follow business ownership, and the two will produce an economically independent and happy people."

The Senator is an inveterate reader on other subjects, too. One of his favorite works is the "Iconoclast Series," by Brann. His favorite poet is Walt Whitman, whom, he feels, has tauched the soul of the American people with his musings.

Seldom Misses Session

Next to his economic theories, Sheppard's hobby has been to faithfully attend every session of the Senate. If a prize were awarded for regularity in attendance, it would go to the Texas Senator without any debate. It is said he has missed but ten days in his thirteen years' service in the Senate. Certainly no other Senator, past or present, can approach his record.

By attendance, too, Sheppard means staying in the chamber, not merely making an appearance and then strolling away for the remainder of the session. The test of his regularity is shown by his record of replies on roll calls. In the whole Sixty-eighth Congress he missed not a single roll-call, appearing every time to answer his name on quorum calls, as well as regular votes. To do so he was forced to keep his stenographer in a Senate ante-room, where he dictated frequently between roll calls. His attendance record is unsurpassed in either branch of Congress.

In the whole thirteen years of his Senatorial service, Sheppard has missed but fourteen roll calls. His amazing regularity can be appreciated by the fact that there were some 2,500 roll calls in that time. The few calls missed were on days when his absence was due to sickness or to official engagements which took him away from the Senate while it was in session. Nearly all occurred during the war, when Sheppard, as a leading Democrat in the Senate, was called into frequent consultation in the Government departments.

"I think it is the duty of a Senator to represent his State on every question that comes before the Senate," says Sheppard in explaining his attendance record. "Faithful service, I feel, means constant attendance, and the casting of my vote on every question decided by the Senate."

Keeps Diary

Sheppard is one of the two Senators known to be keeping a diary of their Senatorial experiences. In it he has recorded every vote he cast, the side of the question he advocated and the fate of every bill on which he voted.

For recreation, the Senator walks and golfs a little. His friends say he plays the latter for the sake of the former, as it is a well known fact that the Texan will never win the crown from Willie Macfarlane's head.

Sheppard has three daughters, ranging in age from four to fourteen years. It is a delight to him when he can gather them around him and read their lessons or help them with their studies. Indeed, one of the joys of his life is associated with his family.

Greatest Joiner

The secret weakness in the Senator's life is his love for joining lodges. He is known as the official "jiner" among his colleagues, being a member now of the Masons, Elks, Woodmen of the World, Knights of Pythias, Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Knights Templar, the Red Men and the Shrine, among others.

As far his prohibition activity, Sheppard was as much responsible for the passage of the Volstead law as the gentleman whose name it bears. He fought the bill's battles in the Senate, where the fight was tenfold more difficult than in the House. And eventually he had the bill enacted. Now he has set his face against any liberalization of the law. He firmly believes that prohibition is here to stay, and the doubters might as well make the most of the fact.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—Just what the commerce and labor departments can do about the wage cut in New England textile, woolen and worsted mills isn't very clear. Whatever it is, however, the two departments may be depended on to do it and do it hard.

President Coolidge is understood to be a good deal wrought up over the situation. When he asked the commerce and labor officials to go to the bottom of it, it was as good as a guaranty that they'd get the last available fact.

How the president will use his information, when it's turned over to him, remains to be seen. If it favors the employers, it will be pretty hard to make the workers take much stock in it.

But there's reason to surmise the president hopes it will be the other way. If so, though he may have no means of actually forcing the employers to back track, nevertheless he can make it somewhat uncomfortable for them if they don't.

Just a mere statement of his opinion that the wage cut was unjustified would do that.

Political guessing in Washington is to the effect that the president probably is decidedly sore on some big men in the textile, woolen and worsted industries. A few weeks ago, when a convention of them was held here, it will be recalled that certain among them hinted ata desire for more tariff protection and the president intimated he didn't consider it wise.

Is this wage cut their idea of the best way to make him change his mind? A lot of people think it looks that way.

A GROUCH NOT WANTED.

There is nothing so harmful to success as being a grouch. Stomach, liver and intestinal troubles make one grouchy. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy will help overcome these and usually gives complete results.

Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. CONGRESSMAN ATTENDS UNIV.

HE STUDIES ECONOMICS

Lawmakers Must Have Accurate Knowledge to Cope With National Problems, He Declares.

Congressman Clarence MacGregor of New York believes that representatives in Congress at Washington should be schooled in problems they are sent as the spokesman of the people to consider. For that reason though he has served four terms, he goes to summer school to study current economics. He is now attending classes at Cornell University and the United Press asked him to set forth his reasons for the course. His explantion follows:

By Rep. Clarence MacGregor.
(Written for the United Press).
(Copyright 1925 by United Press).

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Probably at no time in the history of the world has it been more necessary that members of legislative bodies have a wider knowledge upon economics questions than at the present. The future welfare of the United States depends in a large measure upon the knowledge and clarity of mind of the members of congress.

Congress is being besieged at all times to do this or that. The cry for change becomes louder and louder. Propagandist-organized associations fill the mail and the air with demands for legislation that they say will improve conditions and create a better civilization.

Are they right or wrong? Most times they have been wrong. But members of congress should be equipped to act intelligently upon schemes presented to benefit the country and human welfare.

A striking instance is the demands for the fixing of prices of wheat. Is it good or bad and why?

We have the matter of surtaxes. Shall they be high or low?

What about inheritance taxes?

How shall the problem of capital and labor be settled?

Is the Federal Reserve system correct or not?

Why should immigration be restricted or unrestricted?

Should education be national or local?

Should the government own the public utilities?

Should we embark upon all the panaceas that England is adopting?

These are all questions that confront members of congress. That is why I am here at Cornell studying economics. I believe that it is due to the people that they represent members of congress should in every way possible fit themselves to bring to the solution of these many problems with intelligent minds.

Eat the Right Breakfast Hot Days

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes
Supplies the energy you need

SOME people make a practice of passing vigor foods in summer. That's a mistake.

For breakfast, have oats and milk.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. And that makes it easy. No hot kitchens. No fuming, no frying, no stewing.

Start on oats tomorrow. Note how good you'll feel. Mark the way that dragged-out feeling goes.

JURY GRANTS SCOTT LIFE

MURDERER ADJUDGED INSANE, WILL ESCAPE GALLOWS.

JURY OUT 4 HOURS

Take Seven Ballots To Decide Scott's Fate—Was Either Death Or Insanity For Him.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Russell Scott was cheerful in his cell at the county jail today following his sentence of insanity yesterday. He refused, however, to be interviewed "unless you have an order from my attorneys."

He ate a hearty breakfast, paid a visit to the barber shop and strolled up and down the narrow confines of his fifth floor cell this morning. He will be transferred to the Chester Asylum late today or tomorrow and will be taken to the train under guard.

The jury reached its verdict after deliberating three hours and forty minutes. Its first ballot was reported to have been 7 to 5 for insanity and thereafter the vote gradually swung to the insanity verdict.

Scott immediately was committed to the asylum for the insane. The jury took seven ballots.

The former Canadian financier has five times been within the gallows' shadow and twice within the last three weeks has been saved from the noose almost at the hour of his death march.

Scott three weeks ago tonight was saved by a week's reprieve from the governor.

Two weeks ago tonight, less than four hours before he was to walk on the death trap, he was again saved by a petition filed before Judge Joseph David at 2 o'clock in the morning declaring him to be insane.

Was Either Death or Insanity.

The hearing that saved his life started Monday. Had Scott been found sane he would have been sentenced to death once more, this time by the judge who presided at the sanity hearing.

Scott sat tensely in his chair while the jury filed into the box. He turned eagerly to the foreman when he announced to the court that a verdict was ready, and as the bailiff passed the verdict to the clerk, Scott's eyes followed the slip of paper that meant life or death.

Is Hurried From the Room.

When the verdict was read Scott's mouth twitched nervously and he shifted his position in the chair. He sat motionless at the side of his attorneys while the court entered the judgment on the verdict, and then was hurried out of the room as the bailiff adjourned the session.

Mrs. Catherine Scott, the young wife of the prisoner, whose dauntless fight saved Scott from the gallows, leaned forward in an attitude of prayer after the verdict was read. Scott's mother, who was at his side, wept and embraced Scott's wife, while Thomas Scott, his crippled father, who observed his sixty-third birthday the day Scott was sentenced to hang, stayed close to his son in court, but received the verdict without show of emotion.

Coal Miners Carry On Strike With Prayer

Henryetta, Okla. August 7—The strangest strike that ever was seen is being conducted in the Henryetta coal fields here.

It is a strike in which union pickets sing hymns and pray for the welfare and guidance of strike-breakers and mine owners; in which daily song service at the mine entrances have taken the place of the abusive threats that usually are hurled at men who will not join the union.

You might call it the Golden Rule strike.

Say It Works Well

Further, officials of the United Mine Workers say this strange strike is working out so well that these "Christian" tactics will be continued all summer, if need be.

There are five mines here employing non-union men. The union men, numbering between 500 and 1000, quit work rather than accept a wage cut to the 1917 level.

Trouble was feared, as feeling ran high. The state militia was ordered out.

Here is a daily scene at each mine entrance.

Sing National Anthem.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the men quit work. On the road outside a crowd of union men, with their wives and children. Between them and the mine is a row of soldiers with rifles. The workers look out apprehensively.

The crowd of union pickets carries many American flags. No Placards, no clubs, no bricks—just flags. They group close together—and then they sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

The young infantry lieutenant snaps into a salute. The privates present arms. The union men stand erect, hats off, gazing straight ahead—at the mine.

Then the anthem ends. Immediately the pickets break into a hymn. It is followed by another, then another. Then a man in his shirt sleeves steps forward, raises his hands, and starts to pray. Union men and non-union men bow their heads.

Ask Divine Protection.

And the prayer? It asks divine protection for the strike-breakers—the men who are dubbed "scabs" in most strikes.

"Lord, we would not have any harm come to these men," says the leader. "Lord, hold the rocks of the mountainside up from them.

"But Lord, let them see the light that they will not continue to deprive union men and their wives and families of that which they have worked for and which is rightfully theirs."

The leader also asks that God Soften the hearts of the mine owners. Then he closes with a plea for the soldiers, praying that "Thou wilt guide and protect these soldier boys and not let them come to any harm."

Then the services end. The strike-breakers pass out quietly. The pickets stand still.

No Insulting Cries.

Instead of the insulting cries and cat calls that are usually heard at such times, one hears a woman call to a strike-breaker:

"I'm praying for you, John Smith," or "God bless you, Jim Jones."

And that's all.

Each afternoon such a scene is enacted at each of the five mines. A few small groups of men have been induced to quit work.

Mine owners say they cannot afford to yield to the union's demands. Union men reply that they will continue their fight until fall, if need be.

And all the while the Golden Rule strike goes on, peacefully and orderly, and every afternoon the leaders stand before the various mines with uprais-ed hands and bared heads and repeat—

"Oh Lord, we would not have any harm come to these men—"

A RED HEAD AND A HIGH TEMPER.

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for August 9, 1925. Read Acts 15-16. Wm. Southern, Jr.

There is no mystery about Christianity.

The whole story of Christianity is the story of men and women who live and loved and hated and quarreled and fought and died. They were just as human as you and I are human. It is too bad that so many people want something mysterious, something they cannot understand, demand that miracles be performed and want their preachers to be super-men who never get mad, who never have a fault. I would not give much for the man who never got mad, who never wanted to fight, who was so peaceful that he accepted all kinds of insults and indignities without protest. We are inclined to call such a man a sissy.

Boys in school are natural. Therefore they fight and play and laugh and run wild. But as men they allow prejudices full sway, are nice toward those who are in a position to help and snippy toward those who may be of no value to them.

A fifteen year old boy of my acquaintance organized a baseball club. On the club was another boy who belonged to a church proscribed in that community. The boy's mother gently asked him how this outlander happened to be on the club and the answer was, "We don't care what church any boy belongs to if he can play ball like Bill does."

Read now the story of Paul's quarrel with his best friend Barnabas, the man who had made it possible for him to become a Christian missionary, the man who was the foundation rock for the new church.

This study is a study in character. My idea of Paul is that he was a rather small man, rugged of face, red-headed and of a fiery temper, possibly in later years bald-headed, and determined to accomplish his purpose no matter what fights might face him. He was intolerant of weakness in others. I think his two upper front teeth stuck out prominently and his eyes were weak. Paul was much such a warrior as Roosevelt, a man who caught and held the public admiration and also a man whose short temper, intolerance and egotism made his judgment extremely bad at times.

All these things may be easily deduced from the chapters in the Acts which make up this study. After the first missionary journey when churches were planted in Cyprus and Asia Minor, Paul and Barnabas decided to make another journey, visit all the new churches and establish others. The Antioch church was willing and agreed to back them. When it came to making up the party Barnabas wanted to take along his nephew, John Mark, who had started out with them on the first journey and left them on the way. Paul got mad, he said John Mark was yellow and he would not have him around.

This quarrel changed all the plans and resulted in two missionary parties instead of one. Paul took Silas, an old and steady campaigner from Jerusalem, a Roman. Barnabas took John Mark and went in another direction.

I think I have driven this point home before that church quarrels often result in greater churches, better work and more interest. Monotony is the greatest soporific known. Churches so harmonious and so prosperous that everybody agrees with everybody else and nobody breaks a new road, always get the dry rot and become useless until somebody starts a fight. The reason there are so many divorces—that the monotony of looking across the breakfast table at the same old permanent wave and the same kimona or at a newspaper where a husband should be every morning at breakfast.

Most of the writers on Bible subjects are hero worshippers. It would not do to write anything which might be construed as a criticism of Saint Paul to whom we owe so much, who was a real leader of the Christian church. I do not see how anyone could take Paul's side of this controversy. He was wrong about John Mark and he afterwards admitted that he was wrong. John Mark is known now as the Lion of Christianity. He lived a long and useful life and joined other leaders in martyrdom.

Paul and Silas went to Lystra, the scene of one of Paul's serious adventures. While there the first time Paul had met and visited a remarkable family. The mother and grandmother were Jewesses. The father was a Greek. The son was Timothy, one of the fine characters of Christian history. The women and the son became Christians and Paul again visited in this home and when he left to continue his journey the boy Timothy went with him. Timothy, like all other boys, made a hero out of the older man. He thought Paul the most wonderful man in the world, and he was. Paul took Timothy and the association became as beautiful as the love between an older and a younger man can ever be.

The story of Paul and Timothy is recorded in the New Testament. I wish the writers had set down the story of the further work and life of Barnabas but he here disappears from our canonical history.

These scraps of character painting revolving about great personages in the history of the early church, Paul, Barnabas, Silas and John Mark, give us a picture of what actually happened in the first century after Christ. There is no mystery about it. It is the story of loyal men who had accepted Christianity, who believed in it and who were willing to and did give their lives to it. The record also gives us the human touches.

We would accomplish so much more, more, build on so much more solid a foundation if we could get out of our minds the idea of mysticism in our religion, the idea of super-men, the idea of hero worship. No man knows better than the great man how human and faulty he himself is. We want to set our preacher up on a pedestal and are shocked when we find that he is a mere man, subject to human likes and dislikes and temper and prejudice. We make heroes out of presidents when they are probably political accidents.

Paul was red-headed, quick-tempered, ready to fight at the drop of the hat and drop it himself. He was an old bachelor and did not have the training some of us get in restraint. I am glad Paul was Paul. His record makes me feel so much better about myself. Paul accomplished great things, he was a great man, he was unafraid and always willing to take a chance.

The Christian church is made up of human beings who have human faults and who are limited by human frailties. The assembling together in a church is simply a grouping of men and women for mutual help, mutual consideration and mutual betterment. There is no mystery about it and to be a good Christian one does not have to be faultless or sinless, or beyond reach of temptation.

Some people find fault with woman in her use of devices to make her appear young and beautiful and believe damage is done to her beauty by the use of artificial methods. But she must look well at any cost. In the animal kingdom it is the male that is the most beautiful among many species notably birds, and they know it, too. We cite the peacock as only one instance. But, as man is the highest and noblest animal, he wants the woman to be the prettier. So does she. She always has been so and there has been no time in the history of civilization when she did not call artifices to her aid. She is no different than she ever has been—perhaps a little more frank, that is all. And we wouldn't have her any different, bless her.

First Photo of Scott Sanity Hearing

night's conference he and Dr. Stewart had with the governor was a great surprise. Dr. North and Dr. Enloe are reputed to have been close political friends for several years. It is understood Dr. North last winter, after Mr. Baker's inauguration, took F. H. Wielandy, formerly state fish and game commissioner, to inspect the mining properites near Picher, Okla., owned by a company in which Dr. Enloe is one of the large stockholders.

Calls in Stewart and Brunk

The governor was in conference yesterday with Dr. Stewart and Senator Brunk, the two recalcitrant members of the official family. Following the conference, Dr. Stewart again was asked whether Dr. Enloe's resignation had been requested.

"I don't think so," Dr. Stewart replied.

"Will it be asked?"

"I can't say."

Prior to this Dr. Stewart said the governor had suggested Wednesday night Dr. Enloe be asked to resign. He and Dr. North were unable to reach Dr. Enloe then, but told him yesterday morning of the situation. Dr. Enloe refused to say what he would do.

Stewart Silent on Charges.

Dr. Stewart declined to make public the charges against Dr. Enloe that were brought to the governor's attention, but declared press reports from St. Louis purporting to contain them were not correct.

Dr. Enloe's reputed friendly and political relations with Dr. R. B. Horton of Purdy, Mo., physician, now awaiting hearing on charges of obtaining his license in a fraudulent manner, are said authoritatively to be at the base of the action of the board and the executive council of the Missouri Medical Association in asking Dr. Enloe's removal.

That these are far stronger than has been intimated previously is indicated by the fact that Dr. North, Dr. Enloe's bosom friend, was one of the first to bring the matter to the governor's attention.

Mr. and Mrs. George Porterfield and Mr. and Mrs. Roy McMullen and daughter LaVerne left Wednesday for Eldorado Springs, Mo., where they will visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Falkner for a few days. Mrs. Falkner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Porterfield and a sister of Mrs. McMullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McKee moved from Pickering to Sheridan, Mo., where Mr. McKee will be employed in a hardware store.

The programs which have been put on by the Acme Chautauqua System this year have been greatly enjoyed by fair-sized audiences. It is generally conceded that the programs have been of a higher class than those that have been offered in previous years.

Talk about "million dollar rains." The one which began here about 2 a. m., Thursday and continued steadily throughout the day and intermittently far into the night was surely of that class.

In the neighborhood of two inches of water fell in so gentle manner that scarcely any of it ran away, thoroughly soaking the ground and providing moisture enough to carry the corn crop well toward maturity. Fall pastures will also be greatly benefitted by the rain.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Bible School at 10 a. m., next Sunday. No preaching service on account of the absence of the pastor.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Christian church met Friday and discussed plans for their fall work. They set their date for the bazaar for probably the twelfth (12) of December. Are going to begin work immediately for it. Regular monthly meetings will be held, and work done either for the bazaar or outside quilting. They also planned to hold some markets at future dates.

A good social time was enjoyed at this meeting. Each woman brought two cents for each married year of her life and related the most amusing event that happened during their courtship or on their wedding day.

A Paint for every purpose. Houses, school houses, interior work, barns, outbuildings, etc. Strictly high quality.

Silent Sanderson Is Exciting Movie Show

If you're looking for a darn good "Western,"—if you crave a blood-curdling tale of the merciless Yukon—if you demand a beautiful, tender love story—or if you're just out for a delightful evening's entertainment, you'll do well to look in at the Empire tonight or Saturday, where Harry Carey's latest Hunt Stromberg production, "Silent Sanderson" is playing. "Silent Sanderson" is a picture that skilfully combines all four features, and in addition Harry Carey's acting is superb. He seems to improve with each picture; at least, so we've found it.

The purchase by Henry Ford of Government ships that cost $100,000,000 for $1,706,000 probably means that the financial wizard of the auto world and several other industrial worlds will enter the shipping industry as a serious competitor of foreign ship owners. If Henry Ford can establish a successful fleet of carrying vessels under the American flag, he will be entitled to the thanks of the nation. Men of less financial resources have tried it and the Federal Government has wasted many millions trying it. Under the terms of the sale most of the 200 ships purchased must be scrapped but he is permitted to save fifty vessels and put them into service.

Leopold Wins Death Bet With Reporters

With Scott Saved from Gallows, Leopold Prediction on Scott, Grant Himself, Comes True

Chicago, Aug. 7—Nathan Leopold today had won his parley, bet with death which he made more than a year ago when the nation's attention was focused on him and ''Dickey" Loeb, his companion in the "crime for a thrill," the slaying of little Bobbie Franks. While the dapper college youths stood in the shadows of the gallows he proposed his bet to newspajer men who were gathered there for their daily interview.

"Let's bet on whether I hang or not," said Leopold. "Tell you what I'll do, I'll make a parley bet with you. I'll bet you that neither Bernard Grant, Russell Scott or I will go to the gallows.''

That was year ago. A short time later "Babe" and "Dickey" Loeb, were sent to the state penitentiary for life and 99 years. Time went on and attorneys were fighting wildly for the life of Bernard Grant, convicted of participation in the robbery in which patrolman Ralph Souder was slain. The boy, whose hair turned gray as he waited for his execution, was attacked and slain in the jail by his companion in the crime.

Yesterday a jury brought in a verdict that Scott, convicted of murder of a drug store clerk, was insane. Leopold had won his bet with the newspaper men.

Here's a Timely Tip to Aug. Excusionists

Macomb, Ill., Aug. 7 (United Press)—It takes more than a gust of wind to stop Thomas Gilmore, a 94 year old youth, from carrying out his plans.

Gilmore, with his wife, boarded a train here for a trip to California. As he handed his bulky ticket to the conductor, the breeze whisked it from his hands and flipped it out the window.

Gilmore got off the train at Bardolph, six miles from here, walked back along the track and found the ticket in the weeds along the side of the rails.

His wife came back to Macomb on the next train. They hired a taxicab and cut across the country to Monmouth, where they boarded the same train on which they started.

The scenes of the photoplay are laid right in the heart of the most wonderful sections of the wild Colorado Mountains and canyons and are packed with adventure of the most hair-raising description. Herrin Churches Draws Big Crowds

People of Williamson County Cite This as Proof That Once Bloody County is Now Peaceful

Herrin, Ill., Aug 7 (United Press)—Williamson County churches — forgotten somewhat during the strife of the past four years—today are going through their greatest period of attendance.

Every church reports increased audiences at both the Sunday and week-day meetings, and townspeople point to this as further proof that a peace has settled over the community.

The increased attendance started immediately after the Howard S. Williams evangelical services ended and has been on a steady basis ever since.

The Baptist Church reports its meetings have increased in attendance some 700. The Methodist, Presbyterian and Christian churches all report a like increase.

Chicken Thieves at Work at Clearmont

(Clearmont News.)

Chicken thieves are still working in this locality, as last Monday evening they visited the home of W. P. Wallace, just at the edge of town, and got away with about one hundred pure-blood chickens. The theft was done while Chautauqua was going on and Mr. Wallace thinks they were scared away by people going home or they would have taken more as he had about 250 chickens all together. It seems like some kind of concerted action ought to be taken to catch these thieves. Why not do something to stop this wholesale chicken stealing. The thieves are undoubtedly organized, and poultry raisers ought to organize also and make it unhealthy for them.

Country Gentleman Warns Poultry Raisers Against "Egg-Pirates"

(Prepared by D. A. Caldwell)

Of interest to all egg shippers in this vicinity is an article by E. H. Taylor on page 3 of the current issue of the Country Gentleman, entitled "Egg Pirates," which tells of the dishonest practices resorted to by the fly-by-night swindlers that exist in large numbers on the centers of the egg market. The author says: "The egg trade is infested with more crooks than any other of the large distributing trades, because of the small capital required and the large number of small, uniformed, and unwary shippers.

"The usual practice of the shyster is to set up in a basement or small storeroom in the poultry and egg marketing district, securing thereby a low overhead cost and an address that wil divert suspicion as well as afford convenience in disposing of shipments.

"The next thing is to round up shippers. A resort to piracy accomplishes this. The crook moves about thru the egg-marketing district, copying addresses on express tags of shipment. Or he may bribe a truck driver to give him a list of names.

"A letter is sent out to the men whose names are thus gathered, soliciting shipments and claiming unusual marketing advantages, perhaps offering a cent or two above the market price.

"Some of the crooked firms, with a due regard for postal laws, never quote prices by mail but use the telegraph.

"Shippers can protect themselves by securing lists of reliable firms from state marketing agencies. Local banks can often lend a hand by getting in touch with banks in the egg centers.

"A good local buyer is the best year-round market for the farmer to whom eggs are only a side line. Selling to him reduces risk and trouble."
